This is my four year old grandson's favorite book. His Mom reads it to him every night and he has all of the words memorized. The glow-in-the-dark factor is what makes this book so special. He loves Disney Pixar Cars and we find that reading this to him at night, and more than once per his request, helps him settle down to go to sleep. I highly recommend it.

We ordered this and the similar Monsters, Inc. Monster-Hide-And-Seek glow in the dark book (<http://www..com/gp/product/0736430326>) at the same time. The Cars book, while enjoyable, loses its luminosity within 10-12 seconds, while the Monsters, Inc. book lasts up to a minute in places. We can finish the next page and turn back a page in the Monsters book and still see faint glowing. The Cars book quickly fades as you're reading the page. Still a fun purchase, but it's a shame the quality control isn't a bit more consistent. FWIW, I let my three year old use a non-LED flashlight while reading to activate the glow. LED flashlights work better with charging the paint, but the pages are very reflective and it's easy for him to shine it directly in his eyes (discounting all the times he intentionally tries to shine it directly in his eyes).

Cute short story board book that's fun for the kiddos in the dark. The sentences on the pages don't glow, so you can't exactly read it in the dark and you have to manually "charge" each page by holding it up to a light source for 15-30 seconds, which is more cumbersome than you might think and the glow doesn't last all that long. But, it didn't cost very much and my toddler gets a kick out of seeing McQueen glow in the dark. Plus, it's a book that promotes more reading time together which is really what it's all about!

VERY simple book. There is no real story line to it and it can be read in less than two minutes. Also, doesn't glow no matter how long it sits in the light prior. My son who is obsessed with Disney Cars likes the picture and it works for a quick book before bed, but definitely not to keep their attention.

This book is extremely short! I'm sure it says that somewhere on the description, but I didn't look into it much since my son is obsessed with Lightning McQueen, I just jumped the gun. Not a big deal, he just turned 2 so he just makes me read it 2 or 3 times before we can move onto the next book in the line up. It's been a fun book for him to flip through in the car when we are driving at night as well! Love that it's a cardboard book and it's definitely high quality, just wish it was like twice as long. Oh well! I'd still buy it again.

It takes a while for the "charging" of the lights, and reading is slow because you have to charge each page as you read. Even "charging" the luminescence before reading it doesn't hold the light to read the entire book.

Boring, un-creative book. With the forces of Disney behind it, it could at least have been creative. Only thing positive about this book is that it is colorful.

This book is perfect, it's cheap, and very short, like others have said, it lacks story, but it's the perfect "okay ONE more book before bed" because it takes a whole 1 minute to read...if you go slowly.
