Thom Corcoran is a public affairs specialist with the U.S. Forest Service in Portland, Oregon. A graduate of California State University, San Francisco, in inter-disciplinary education, he did graduate study in environmental planning at California State University, Chico. Thom worked closely with geologists, the media, and emergency agencies during eruptions of Mount St. Helens. In addition, he has been involved in Mount St. Helens land-use plans and the development of the interpretive/naturalist program.

This descriptive book has 48 pages of amazing photos from the 1980 eruption to 2001. The narrative is well-done and informative. Before visiting in person, check out the website for updated information, some not even found in a recent Lonely Planet guide book of the Pacific NW. [...]
