Customer Reviews

Great tutorial for creating skin tones with colored pencil. As a watercolor artist, I use a totally different method of color combination. The techniques found in this book taught me new ways to see skin tones from a different perspective and capture hues methodically. Easy to follow and produces work that is beautifully done...

The illustrations of the art work in this book are excellent , I have been an artist for many years and the one thing I have learned is that an artist who believes they have "arrived" is an artist that has stopped learning, this book is great for learning how to do many things

What a fantastic deal on this book. I bought it using my Kindle as I wasn't sure about the content. I am new to colored pencil and quite addicted to buying books! This is truly a step by step. Really great detail, easy to read. I can't say enough. The author really did a great job.

The most valuable part of the book for me is the colors/values table where skin colors are classified and three methods of creating values. After the theoretic part, the book represents the detailed work process on one portrait using a photo as a reference.

Ron provides a detailed tutorial of every step of the process beginning with identifying the full range of values of the subject, and continuing through each layer of color pencil to obtain realistic portraits. A fantastic book no matter what your subject preference is!

Ok!

This was a book on colored pencil portraits. It was easy to understand the techniques used. Especially the focus on facial coloring and gray values for shading. Very informational.

I liked the straightforward, nontechnical language from a person with experience you walking you through a portrait and even giving the time breakdown, tips and technique, and work in progress photos for color pencil drawing. The only downside is some glaring spelling or grammar errors (personnel for personal) that would make this book way more professional and polished if they were fixed. Read through it in one evening. Thanks!
