Information Resources In Toxicology, Third Edition

Synopsis

Information Resources in Toxicology, Third Edition is a sourcebook for anyone who needs to know where to find toxicology information. It provides an up-to-date selective guide to a large variety of sources--books, journals, organizations, audiovisuals, internet and electronic sources, and more. For the Third Edition, the editors have selected, organized, and updated the most relevant information available. New information on grants and other funding opportunities, physical hazards, patent literature, and technical reports have also been added. This comprehensive, time-saving tool is ideal for toxicologists, pharmacologists, drug companies, testing labs, libraries, poison control centers, physicians, legal and regulatory professionals, and chemists. Serves as an all-in-one resource for toxicology information. New edition includes information on publishers, grants and other funding opportunities, physical hazards, patent literature, and technical reports. Updated to include the latest internet and electronic sources, e-mail addresses, etc. Provides valuable data about the new fields that have emerged within toxicological research; namely, the biochemical, cellular, molecular, and genetic aspects.

Customer Reviews

"Every library (personal, institutional, or public) should have this volume available." --TOXICOLOGY LETTERS, Sep 2000 "The editors have taken on the herculean task of concisely describing essential worldwide toxicological information resources. The book really has no peers in toxicological publishing and should find a useful place on the reference shelf of toxicologists, allied professions, and information professionals. A particular feature of this third edition is coverage of digital and electronic information resources. Increased interest in environmental and risk assessment issues are also evident and new to this edition. With more public and government awareness of toxicology in general and the attendant growth of digital and electronic resources, a fourth edition probably looms on the horizon." --DOODY'S PUBLISHING REVIEWS

Philip Wexler is a Technical Information Specialist at the National Library of Medicine's (NLM) Toxicology and Environmental Health Information Program. A co-developer of the Toxicology History Room, he is co-founder and federal liaison to the Toxicology History Association. Mr. Wexler has lectured and been published widely in the U.S. and abroad on toxicology and toxicoinformatics. He is the Editor-in-Chief of three editions of the Encyclopedia of Toxicology (Third Edition, 2014) and four editions of Information Resources in Toxicology (Fourth edition, 2009), as well as numerous other books and articles. In 2010, he was named the recipient of the US Society of Toxicology's Public Communications Award. Mr. Wexler also serves as an associate editor for a toxicology journal.

This is an excellent toxicology resource for your research needs. I use this as my go to whenever edit reference texts. For those interesting in breaking into toxicology or related fields, this books offer a comprehensive guide. All in all it's a resource I would highly recommend for beginner and pros.

This book has everthing you need to begin researching anything toxicology related. Whether you need to find a certain book, newsletter, journal, video, organization, or whatever...this book is all you need to get started!! I used it in the library on campus and I just had to buy it. I only wish I'd come across this book sooner. I could have saved so much time. There's even a chapter on colleges that have toxicology programs and a career outlook section. The chapter on organizations is nothing short of amazing. It truly is a comprehensive guide that works!! If you are a toxicologist you really ought to have this book.
