I think my grandson had be read this to him about 50 times while we were on vacation. He really loves it.

The kids liked it but wish it was a little longer and that the rhymes were organized a little better

A child or more is going to put food under their bed to scare away a monster that isn't there and bring bugs into the house and then some kid is going to leave their skateboard in the middle of the hallway and crippled their parents. The author could have found a better way to convey there are no monsters underneath your bed.

I loved this book it was funny and just like me when I was her age she tried different things to keep away the monsters in her room totally me I loved this book it was hilarious liked it a lot I can't wait to read some of the other ones in there series I love them lollipop much they are like lollipop s slot they are sweet

Its funny when you think about; because the girl did made a mess of her room just to keep monsters at bay.-The story is not bad its just about a girl who fears monsters and set traps for the monster just so that she can get to sleep.-the pictures are just amazing i would have rate this a 4 but because of the cute pictures this deserves a higher score.-I would recommend it because children does enjoy a colorful story book

This is a cute story of a brave, young five and a half year-old girl who no longer runs to her mom at night. She has taken things into her own hands. She puts up stuffed animals and towers in front of her door all in an attempt to keep undesirables (witches, gobins, and monsters out of her room.

This is another winner by Michael Yu! My 4year old son and I both love reading this book before bed. Great illustrations too.

I liked this book because she came up with all those traps to make the monsters go away from getting her.....
